A photograph of two men in an office environment. One man, wearing glasses and a grey sweater, is seated in a motorized wheelchair with a wooden table attached, holding a glass and a plate. The other man, wearing a dark puffer jacket and light-colored trousers, is standing and shaking hands with the man in the wheelchair. They are both smiling. In the background, there are large windows and office furniture, including a desk with a computer monitor.

“Knowing that there’s someone just in reach gives me the security to actually be on my own.

It is an empowerment. It is an opportunity to regain my agency and regain my independence.”

- Louis
